DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Claims 8 and 10 have been cancelled, Claims 1-7, 9, and 11-22 remain pending in application 09/665,757.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. The rejection of Claims 1-22 under 35 U.S.C. 101 is withdrawn due to applicant's amendment.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.
4. Claims 1-7, 9, and 11-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Knowledge Probe (<http://www.recruiter.ca>).
5. As per independent Claims 1, 9, and 21-22, Wiens discloses a service provider node (method for resume storage and retrieval from multiple warehouses, a computer program product) comprising: a client program for accessing web, gopher and other Internet sites that allows users to read documents and navigate between the documents stored in at least one resume warehouse; a communication link with the plurality at least one resume warehouse; a communication link with at least one client; an application for retrieving job applicant data from at least one resume warehouse, comprising: capturing the job applicant data from the at least one resume warehouse; and parsing the job applicant data captured from the at least one resume warehouse; and an application for collecting the parsed job applicant data and storing the parsed job applicant data in a database. (Resume Detective Application). (www.recruiter.ca [www.recruiter.ca/detective/nj.html, www.recruiter.ca/recruiter/iris.html, www.recruiter.ca/recruiter/r4w.html])

6. Knowledge Probe fails to expressly disclose an application that will parse the resume data and place the parsed resume data into a template with at least one job applicant field, such that formatting of the at least one template matches the formatting of the at least one resume warehouse; whereby the job applicant data is stored in a format preserving its original appearance in the at least one resume warehouse.
7. However, Knowledge probe does teach the use of two applications (Resume Detective and IRIS) to parse the resume data and place the parsed resume data into a template with at least one job applicant field (www.recruiter.ca [www.recruiter.ca/detective/nj.html, www.recruiter.ca/recruiter/iris.html]).
8. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have included one application for parsing the resume data and placing the parsed resume data into a template with at least one job applicant field in the system disclosed by Knowledge Probe, because it would simply be a matter of combining the two applications made by the same manufacturer – which are already made to seamlessly work together.

9. Furthermore, Knowledge probe teaches the placing of the parsed data into a general template (capturing all pertinent data – preserving organization and information content), which could later be used to track and manipulate the job applicant data. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to place the parsed data into any format template the user required, and the prior art discloses a method that can be best used for future data tracking/manipulation. Therefore, the prior art discloses an advancement to the applicant's invention, and since the applicant fails to disclose in the specification a benefit to preserving the job applicant data in its original appearance – the data presentation would be considered nonfunctional descriptive material see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994).
10. Knowledge probe also fails to expressly disclose utilizing the parsed resume data for increasing tracking efficiency.
11. However, Knowledge Probe does disclose tracking the source of the parsed resume data through the resume detective application (www.recruiter.ca/detective/nj.html), and the use of such tracked data does not hold any patentable weight, as a claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.
12. As per Claim 2, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein the client program is a proprietary browser.

13. As per Claim 3, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein the database is local to the service provider.
14. As per Claims 4 and 11, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein the job applicant data in the database is used to generate form letters (Recruiter for Windows Application).
15. As per Claims 5 and 12, Knowledge Probe discloses an application for tracking source information of the job applicant data (Resume Detective Application).
16. As per Claims 6 and 13, Knowledge Probe fails to expressly disclose wherein the application for tracking source information is used to track a headhunter's efficiencies; however, Knowledge Probe does disclose tracking the source of the parsed resume data through the resume detective application (www.recruiter.ca/detective/nj.html), and the use of such tracked data does not hold any patentable weight, as a claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.
17. As per Claims 7 and 20, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein the form letters are communications with the job applicant (Recruiter for Windows Application).
18. As per Claims 14 and 15, Knowledge Probe discloses determining if job applicant data has already been stored in the system to avoid parsing duplicate job applicant data (IRIS Application [Duplicate Detection]).
19. As per Claims 16 and 17, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein cost-related information related to recruiting of job applicants is tracked (Recruiter for Windows Application).

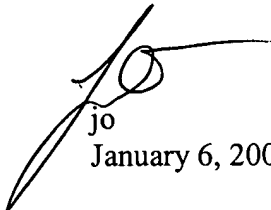

20. As per Claims 18 and 19, Knowledge Probe discloses wherein the parsed job applicant data is searched and manipulated to track job applicant fields contained in the at least one template (IRIS Application).

Response to Arguments

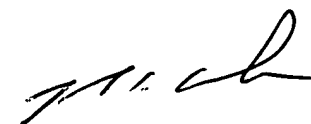

21. Applicant's arguments filed 10/10/03, with respect to Claims 1-7, 9, and 11-22, have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
22. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
23. A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
